Question: What is the status of Fanning School?

Answer: Fanning still active. Development was not approved for Low Income Housing Tax Credit, but Screaming Eagle is looking at other funding options. Still needs approval for variances and plans to do more neighborhood engagement and parking study.

Guest Speaker – Jason Watson with Mission St Louis: Jason's work with Mission St Louis initially focused on education and workforce development. He now leads the Show Me Peace program (formerly Cure Violence) a violence intervention program with a focus on reducing homicides and shootings by establishing relationships with people at risk of being perpetrators or victims. The program operates in 4 city neighborhoods, Dutchtown, Walnut Park East, Wells-Goodfellow and the Ville.

Question: Do the violence interrupters also work with the police.

Answer: The purpose of the program is to engage and build trust among those involved in violence to de-escalate situations before they become a crime.

Question: How is the program funded

Answer: The program is receiving ARPA money.
