She received an email about illegal fireworks and said that police get a lot of calls about those. She said to call police if you see who is doing it and can provide a name or where that person lives. If you notice abandoned cars parked on the street, please call it in.

She will be on vacation from June 24th until July 19th. (Her audio went out at this point).

Neighborhood Improvement Specialist Katie Wolf: NA. on vacation.

Guest Speakers: Local Authors Erin O'Reilly (TGH resident) and Dea Hoover (The Hill resident)

Dea: Her book is entitled "St. Louis Scavenger: The Ultimate Search for St. Louis' Hidden Treasures". It's published by Reedy Press, LLC and it has been a success. As a professional Tour Guide, she was asked to write it and it was perfect timing for the pandemic. An armchair book, It covers many neighborhoods in the St. Louis metro area and Tower Grove South is one of them.

Erin: Her book is entitled "The Recpe for Breastfeeding Support in America". It is self-published. Erin, who has a background in public health nursing, says our health care system and our society are not giving breastfeeding mothers the attention, recognition, and support that they deserve. If babies are breastfed, the incidences of obesity and diabetes can be reduced.

Questions:

Why publish and why publish now?

Dea: It was very market-driven. It was a matter of “right time, right place”.

Erin: I felt these issues needed to be addressed, because they hadn’t been in enough meaningful ways.
